Contributing Editors

Contributing Editors are the people who take certain sections of the book and physically revise it. Aside from the author, the contributing editors are the next in line for providing critical information and pricing updates. Without these contributors, many sections of this book would be a lot skinnier and we appreciate the time they take to help us out.

Photo Acknowledgements

The images in this book and on our website would not be possible without the following people's contributions. Many photos are taken at shows, and these dealers are nice enough and allow us to photograph them during the often hectic shows. Other people below have welcomed us to their stores/homes, allowed us to set up shop, and photograph their entire inventory/collection.

In Memoriam

Stan Jay, owner of the famous vintage guitar store Mandolin Brothers, passed away in 2014, leaving the guitar world without one of its most witty and knowledgeable personalities. In the pages of his monthly Vintage News newsletter, he informed us and entertained us, coining the phrase "wood and steel confection" for the guitars he loved so much. A leader in the vintage guitar industry, Stan will be missed by his many friends and clients.

Jack Wadsworth, a consummate musician from the Fort Worth area, was part of our original "Dallas guitar crew" and will be sorely missed. Jack never had a bad word to say about anyone. What we'll remember the most is sharing the gastronomical delicacies at Uncle Julio's Mexican Restaurant in Fort Worth in addition to Jack taking us to the DFW airport after the shows in Dallas and Arlington in his elongated Lincoln.
